

The submitted manuscript entitled “ COVID-19 related liver injury: Focus on genetic and drug-induced perspectives” is a systematic review in which statistical analysis is not required and was not done from our end.

The systematic review emphasizes on the elucidating the DILI in COVID-19 patients along with a genetic insight for the development of SARS-CoV-2 infection related liver injury by providing the evidence from most current pertinent publications using relevant keywords from online databases.