ICMJE Form for Disclosure of Potential Conflicts of Interest

Instructions

The purpose of this form is to provide readers of your manuscript with information about your other interests that could influence how they receive and understand your work. The form is designed to be completed electronically and stored electronically. It contains programming that allows appropriate data display. Each author should submit a separate form and is responsible for the accuracy and completeness of the submitted information. This form is in six parts.

1. Identifying information.

2. The work under consideration for publication.

This section asks for information about the work that you have submitted for publication. The time frame for this reporting is that of the work itself, from the initial conception and planning to the present. The requested information is about research that you received financial support for. On your institution's behalf, you should use this form to disclose any financial support for any third party—thoroughly and fully—toward the work. This includes any income or revenue from any third party that benefits you directly or indirectly. It also includes any payments you received for any third party to support the work, such as a government granting agency, charitable foundation, or commercial sponsor. Check "Yes."

3. Relevant financial activities outside the submitted work.

This section asks about your financial relationships with entities in the life medical area that could be perceived to influence, or that give the appearance of potentially influencing, what you wrote in the submitted work. This should disclose interactions with any entity that could be considered broadly relevant to the work. For example, if your article is about testing an epidermal growth factor receptor (EGFR) tyrosine kinase inhibitor, you should disclose any financial relationships with entities pursuing diagnostic or therapeutic strategies in cancer in general, not just in the area of EGFR or lung cancer.

Report all sources of income paid to you or paid to your institution on your behalf over the 36 months prior to submission of the work. This should include all monies from sources with relevance to the submitted work, not just revenue from the entity that sponsored the work. Note that your interactions with the entity's sponsor that are outside the submitted work should also be disclosed here. If there is any question, it is usually better to disclose a relationship than not to do so.

For grants you have received for work outside the submitted work, you should disclose support only from entities that could be perceived to be affected financially by the published work, such as drug companies, or foundations supported by entities that could be perceived to be affected financially by the published work. Public funding sources, such as government agencies, charitable foundations, or academic institutions, need not be disclosed, for example, if a government agency sponsored a study in which you have been involved and drugs were provided by a pharmaceutical company, you need only be disclosed if the pharmaceutical company, if any."

This section asks about patents and copyrights, whether pending, issued, licensed, and/or being royalties.

5. Relationships not covered above.

Use this section to report other relationships or activities that readers could perceive to have influenced, or that give the appearance of potentially influencing, what you wrote in the submitted work.

Section 5. Relationships not covered above

Are there other relationships or activities that readers could perceive to have influenced, or that give the appearance of potentially influencing, what you wrote in the submitted work?

☐ Yes, the following relationships/conditions/circumstances are present (explain below):
☐ No other relationships/conditions/circumstances that present a potential conflict of interest

At the time of manuscript acceptance, journals will ask authors to confirm and, if necessary, update their disclosure statements. On occasion, journals may ask authors to disclose further information about reported relationships.

Section 6. Disclosure Statement

Based on the above disclosures, this form will automatically generate a disclosure statement, which will appear in the box below:
