To Whomsoever it may concern

I am writing to clarify that I do not require a Non-Native Speaker of English Editing Certificate for my manuscript titled "The Gut-Skin Axis: Emerging Insights for Gastroenterologists", submitted to World Journal of Gastroenterology.

As a researcher with extensive experience in academic writing and publication, I have authored multiple manuscripts in English. Additionally, I have undergone formal education and professional training in English, ensuring proficiency in writing and communicating complex scientific concepts effectively.

Given my background and familiarity with academic English, I am confident that my manuscript meets the required linguistic and grammatical standards. However, if necessary, I am open to making any language-related revisions as per the reviewers' suggestions.
