

Informed consent: Informed consent was not necessary due to the retrospective nature of this investigation. The data was part of the routine standard of care during assessment for liver transplantation. All data is anonymised and unable to be re-identified. No additional data is available.